1. Download and read the Claimant Handbook on the Georgia Department of Labor (GDOL) website.

2. Check My UI for your claim status. Monitor the GDOL website, your email and voicemail closely for messages from the GDOL.

3. Request your weekly benefit payment. You must request a payment each Sunday thereafter to receive payments. You may do so by selecting the request for payments link on your MyUI or calling the Interactive Voice Response (IVR) System at 1.866.598.4164. You must claim at least one week of benefits for a decision to be made on your claim. You must report gross wages earned for each week claimed for benefits. Failure to report income could result in your having to repay any overpayment benefits.

4. If you are permanently separated from your job, register for Employment Services at EmployGeorgia.com by creating a jobseeker account. Be sure to include your social security number to link your Employ Georgia account to your UI claim. Make sure your résumé is in the “COMPLETE” status and searchable by employers. You are strongly encouraged to utilize Employ Georgia in your job search efforts.

5. Be physically able to perform some type of work (even if it is not your regular field of work).

6. Be available to work and have no unreasonable restrictions that keep you from working.

7. Effective June 27, 2021, be actively looking for suitable work. You must make a good faith effort to find another job by performing new verifiable work search activities 3 or more days for each week you request payments to include, but is not limited to, developing a work search plan, applying for jobs, interviewing, attending job fairs, developing résumés, and more. Learn more about work search requirements here.

8. Effective weeks ending on or after July 3, 2021, maintain a Weekly Work Search Record, DOL-2798, of your work search activities and submit them to the GDOL either online or by fax (see form for details) immediately after you submit your weekly request for payment.

9. Respond immediately to all requests for additional information. It is critical you respond timely as directed by GDOL to avoid delay or denial of benefits.

Employers must be notified when an unemployment claim is filed and indicates a separation from employment. When a reason for separation is other than lack of work, such as, discharge, quit, leave of absence or other non-separation issues are detected, such as receipt of severance pay, retirement pension, unable or unavailable to work, a benefit eligibility review must be conducted to review the details of the separation/non separation as provided by both you and your most recently separated employer. You may be contacted to provide additional information.

Normally, this process takes approximately 21 days from the date the claim is filed to the date an eligibility determination is released and payments, if found to be eligible. However, due to the extremely high volume of claims requiring a benefit eligibility review, this process is delayed. Claims are scheduled for review in the order of receipt. Your separation will only be reviewed if you have sufficient wages to establish a valid regular state claim with a weekly benefit amount of $44 to $365 based on your insured wages for the last 18 months. The wages available and used to calculate your weekly entitlement will reflect on your Unemployment Insurance Benefit Determination. Once the separation is reviewed, a Claims Examiner’s Determination is mailed to you informing you if benefits are allowed or denied. If benefits are allowed, payments will be released within 24-48 hours of the Claims Examiner’s Determination being mailed to you.
